VISAS FOR AUSTRALIA

INSTANCES are often occuring concerning the admission to Australia of children who were born subsequently to the issue of an Australian Landing Permit in favour of their parents.

In order to avoid delay in such cases the Government of Australia have agreed that British Consular and visa-issuing officers may exercise discretion in such cases and, provided they are reasonably satisfied that the case is BONA FIDE, visas may be granted to enable children to accompany their parents and the Landing Permits should be endorsed accordingly provided the children are in sound health.
